SURVIVOR'S SHOCKING STORY

LUCKY TO BE ALIVE: Fisherman Gerald Hainey escaped the deadly clutches of the giant, man-eating squid.

'I survived a giant squid attack!'

... just like in the movie 'The Beast'

COPYRIGHT © 1996 WEEKLY WORLD NEWS

Avid fisherman Gerald Hainey found himself waging a desperate battle for survival when a 45-foot giant squid tried to drag him to a watery death. But incredibly, the plucky 31-year-old Portland, Maine, shipping clerk managed to escape the clutches of the man-eating mollusk.

Here, exclusively for Weekly World News readers, is his harrowing story.

"Oh Jesus, no — don't let this monster from Hell take me down into that deep, black nothingness!"

That's what swept through my brain as the giant squid's thick, slimy tentacle tightened its death grip around my chest and the beast jetted down toward the ocean floor.

I'd had time to suck in just one breath before being pulled overboard and now my lungs felt ready to explode.

"I'm going to die," I realized.

Incredibly, just moments before I'd been enjoying a blissful summer day, fishing from my motorboat on serene Massabesic Bay. Sam, my rocker spaniel, was watching as I felt a tug and started to reel in my catch.

Creature from Hell was 45 feet long!

furiously. "Easy, boy," I said, struggling with my rod. Then — boom! Something powerful bumped the boat from underneath and Sam was flung overboard. "What the hell was that?" I shouted.

The small dog splashed around, whimpering — then, in a flash, he was whisked beneath the surface.

I dropped my rod and called, "Sam, Sam!"

I shrieked in terror as it whipped around my torso, the beast's suckers gluing the tentacle to my chest. I reached for a knife on my tackle box but couldn't make it.

To my horror, I felt myself being lifted from the boat. I took one giant breath — then I hit the frigid water. I opened my eyes and through the water I could see the squid floating before me. It was strangely beautiful, with large, human eyes. But beneath those eyes a massive beak-like mouth was cutting something to pieces.

It was poor dead Sam.

I thrashed about in anger and fear, knowing my turn was next. "If only I had some kind of weapon," I thought desperately.

Then, miraculously, my hand brushed something. Fishing line! My hook was still on the squid's mouth.

I grabbed the line and wrapped the strong nylon cord about each of my gloved hands, then wrapped it around the tentacle and yanked with all my might.

Like a knife, it sliced through the beast's boneless flesh. The tentacle drifted off and the squid zipped away, leaving an inky black cloud in its wake.

I kicked my way to the surface. I'd won — I was alive!

AIDS GOES AIRBORNE!

Killer virus can now be caught through the air just like the common cold, warn doctors!

ATLANTA, Ga. — Government scientists at the Centers for Disease Control are sitting on top of a terrifying new discovery: They've learned the AIDS virus has mutated — and become airborne!

By GEORGE SAMFORD
Weekly World News

That is the chilling word from a CDC insider, who claims to have seen a hush-hush report detailing the extent of the long-feared "second wave" of the deadly epidemic.

"The inevitable has finally happened," said the insider. "We knew that we had only a few years to stop the HIV virus before it mutated — and we've run out of time.

"Now the virus can be spread by a cough, a sneeze — even through normal breathing in close quarters such as an elevator or airplane. Every man, woman and child in America is at risk."

The CDC is refusing to confirm the existence of the report, which, the insider claims, predicts that 45 percent of the U.S. public will become infected within two years.

"Our bosses fear that if this report were made public, there would be nationwide panic," explained the insider. "And with good reason. The mortality rate could easily be well over 100 million. We're looking at another Black Plague."

Until recently, medical researchers have believed the HIV virus, which causes the deadly immune system disease, could not be transmitted by casual contact, only by exchange of bodily fluids — blood transfusions, sexual intercourse or sharing of needles.

At the same time, they've warned that the virus is constantly mutating, its genetic code shifting. "It's been like playing Russian roulette — and our luck has just run out," said the insider.

In early March, the first known cases of airborne AIDS were reported to the CDC — one in Miami and four others in New York, the insider claims. "The victims had none of the usual risk factors. They had simply shared hospital rooms with AIDS patients."

They are drawing up plans for mass quarantines — it may be necessary to cut off cities where outbreaks have occurred. They are also putting in rush orders for gas masks, which every American family will need."

CDC officials are hoping to postpone a formal announcement on airborne AIDS as long as possible. "Experts feel that we are on the brink of finding a vaccine for HIV," explained the insider. "They are hoping to keep the public in the dark until we can assure them there is a sure way to beat this epidemic."

Mystery of history's most notorious serial killer solved!

JACK THE RIPPER'S MUMMY FOUND!

LONDON was terrorized in the late 19th century by a fiendish killer known as Jack the Ripper.

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

LONDON — Workers tearing down an old bakery have discovered the mummified remains of history's most notorious serial killer — bloodthirsty Jack the Ripper!

The body, identified as that of Dr. Nigel Torme, was found in a secret chamber beneath the bakery along with the corpses of two unidentified women, who had been stabbed and dissected.

Experts say it was probably the radiant dry heat from the ovens that kept the bodies preserved since the turn of the century.

The building was once the home of Dr. Torme, who lived there during the late 1880s when five prostitutes were killed in London's East End and countless others were reported missing.

It was converted to a bakery after the doctor disappeared in 1900.

The infamous "Ripper murders" remained unsolved for 100 years.

But now experts are sure they have indisputable evidence.

"We found the bloody surgical knives beside the bodies," said noted French criminologist and Ripper expert, Dr. Jeanne Benoit, who was called in by British authorities.

"And the women in the cellar were killed in the same vicious way as the Ripper's prostitute victims, who died in 1888.

"But most damning of all is the fact that the material he was wearing perfectly matches a piece of material that was found at one of the murder scenes."

Dr. Jeanne Benoit

Dr. Benoit says a small amount of poison was found in a vial by the body. She believes Dr. Torme's death was a suicide, prompted by the unbearable guilt he felt about his crimes.

"Dr. Torme was never a suspect as he was never questioned in the case," says the respected researcher. "Everyone probably thought he simply left town.

"However, when the workers found those women's bodies and the knives with him, we guessed he was probably responsible for the Ripper murders. But, what really tipped me off was that he was wearing that coat.

"I asked myself why would he be wearing a coat in that heat? Then I realized it was his way of confessing — he knew we'd match the coat with the cloth fragment the authorities had."

Officials believe Dr. Torme built the secret death chamber beneath the home, brought the women there and killed them. Later, he withdrew from society to live between the walls of his home.

HEAT from the bakery ovens helped preserve Jack the Ripper's corpse

Seven out of 10 Americans marry for money

A majority of Americans say the best way to get-rich-quick is to marry someone with money, according to a new survey.

Out of 2,000 people surveyed nationwide, 1,350 people, or 69 percent, listed various get rich schemes as the best way to obtain money.

Only 30 percent of those surveyed mentioned the old-fashioned way of making money — earning it.

Others suggested getting rich by gambling, stealing, inheriting money or from making good investments.

SEASON OF BIRTH INFLUENCES YOUR JOB CHOICE

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

If you want your child to be a doctor, make sure the tot is born in the summertime.

Why? Because the season during which a person is born strongly influences their choice of occupation, a British psychologist has concluded after 10 years of research.

What's more, Professor Alan Smithers has learned, your astrological sign determines major aspects of your personality such as whether you're shy or outgoing.

"I set out to prove that astrology was wrong — that stellar cosmic rays didn't influence our lives and affect our characters and destinies," he said.

"But our research shows that personality is controlled by astrological influences — while other human functions such as occupation are determined by the seasons of the year."

In the Manchester University study, Prof. Smithers compared the birth dates of 15,000 people with their occupations. He discovered that most of the doctors, lawyers, soldiers and novelists were born in the summer. Most politicians were born in early spring, while musicians entered the world between mid-summer and mid-autumn.

Most doctors were born in the summer, for instance

But if you want your child to grow up to be a comedian or an artist, the professor said, the child should be born in winter.

Prof. Smithers also did personality studies on 600 English students and 1,000 women in Australia, comparing their personality types with their astrological signs.

Amazingly, he found that extroverts were more likely to be born under the following signs of the zodiac: Aries, Gemini, Leo, Libra, Sagittarius and Aquarius. On the other hand, introverts were usually born under Taurus, Cancer, Virgo, Scorpio, Capricorn and Pisces.

"I am convinced the positions of the stars when we are born does affect what type of people we are," Prof. Smith declared.

$20,000 SPARKLER — DOWN THE HATCH...

Best man swallows the ring & wrecks wedding!

DENVER, Colo. — The best man at a lavish wedding stunned the bride-to-be, the groom and 250 guests — and brought the ceremony to a screeching halt — when he swallowed the $20,000 ring!

Friends of the couple say best man Thomas Hynsel's motive was clear: Jealousy. He was a former boyfriend of the bride.

The dramatic incident took place in a majestic east side church before a wealthy jet-set crowd. Some guests had flown in from as far away as Italy to watch import-export entrepreneur Peter Giovanetti, 34, and socialite Doris Lyons, 32, tie the knot.

"Most of us thought asking Tom to be best man was not the wisest move," said one guest.

"Everyone but Peter knew the guy was still carrying a torch for Doris. But I never expected this."

"When the minister asked, 'Do you have the ring?' Peter held his hand out to Tom. After a long pause, Tom shouted, 'I can't let this happen.' He turned the ring into his mouth and swallowed it.

"It was awful. No one knew what to do. We just stood there in an awkward silence. Then Doris went tearing out of the room sobbing.

"Finally her father announced that the wedding was off."

Hynsel's friends describe him as a shy, uncommunicative man who finds it difficult to express his feelings.

Giovanetti says he still can't believe what happened.

"Tom and Doris had a thing awhile back," he says. "I guess sort of took her away from him. But I thought those wounds had healed long ago. He never gave me the slightest indication that he still cared for her."

The couple still plans to marry but, although the diamond studded gold band has since been recovered, Giovanetti says he plans to buy another one.

"I could never put that ring on Doris' finger knowing where it's been," Giovanetti told reporters.

BEST MAN Tom Hynsel was driven by protective witnesses shy.

Ancient Olympic games were bizarre rituals where . . .

NAKED ATHLETES FOUGHT TO THE DEATH

The ancient Greeks who founded the Olympics 2,700 years ago were anything but noble, idealistic supermen.

They were ruthless brutes who would do anything to win — even commit murder!

What's more, when a Greek contestant took to the field, he wasn't wearing the latest in designer warm-up togs like the athletes competing this year in Atlanta — he was stark naked!

Then as now, boxing was one of the more popular of the events at the Olympics.

But the ancient Greek version was far more savage than any modern-day ring rumble.

The only thing fighters wore were hard leather thongs wrapped around their fists, which turned them into body-smashing knuckles of death.

In one notorious fight, a combatant ridgedly extended his fingers and stabbed his luckless opponent beneath the ribs, killing him instantly.

The crafty warrior was not penalized for his lethal blow — death in the early games was an accepted hazard.

The ancient Greeks were also incredibly sexist — the only females allowed to watch were maid-carrying virgins.

Married women who dared to attend the games risked certain death by being shoved off a cliff.

. . . & only virgins were permitted to watch!

One bold matron of yore was determined to watch her son compete in a race, so she disguised herself as his trainer.

Unfortunately, in her excitement when the lad won, she leaped over the track barrier — into the view of startled officials. The organizers forgave the loving mom. But from that day on, trainers, too, had to strip naked before each event!

Unlike today's jocks, the ancient Greek athletes did keep themselves pure from female sports groupies — but that's mainly because they had wild gay sex with each other every chance they got!

The fun finally stopped when Roman Emperor Theodosius called a halt to the Olympics at the end of the 4th century A.D., because they fired up the spirits of the conquered Greeks. The international Olympic games remained dead until they were started up again in 1896.

Patient dies because doc was too busy counting his money!

PARIS — Renowned heart surgeon Dr. Philippe Fremont was barred from practicing medicine after he let a patient die on the operating table while he sat at his office — counting his money!

Investigators say heart patient Ginet Dupetit, 63, died after Dr. Fremont failed to show up at the hospital to perform a scheduled operation.

"The doctor told us he was involved in a banking deal worth millions and forgot about the time," a member of the medical board said yesterday.

lk and lots and lots of chocolate goodies.

veigh over 3,000 pounds

d that's too much,

ys titanic Texan!

Buster Simcus

DALLAS, Texas — After losing more than 2,300 pounds, history's fattest man has regained his weight — AND MORE — and is once again a walking blimp at a mammoth 3,003 pounds!

Buster Simcus' dramatic drop from a scale-smashing 2,513 pounds to a trim 212 was the subject of countless newspaper and magazine articles, including several Weekly World News stories.

In October 1985, the NEWS reported Simcus' triumph and published before and after photos. We even printed the diet that melted away his 2,301 pounds in just eight short months.

But now, less than a year after his well-publicized victory, he has gained it all back plus the pounds.

"I had it all," said Simcus sadly from the sofa of his home where he's now confined, unable to move. "I had my health back, I was taking daily walks, I was even dating some women who actually were attracted to me.

"Now I've blown it all. I started overeating just a little at a time at first, then gradually more and more, until I had piled all the excess fat back onto my 5-foot, 9-inch frame.

"Even then I couldn't stop — still can't stop. I weigh over 3,000 pounds and I'm miserable.

"Anyone who's never had the disease of compulsive overeating can't possibly know what I'm going through. It's hell. I can't even get up to go to the bathroom."

Simcus has a live-in nurse whose job is to care for his every need including bringing him his food, sponge bathing him and emptying his bedpan. The mountainous Texan's oil tycoon father left him enough money to support him in style forever.

"That's fortunate or unfortunate depending on how you look at it," says Simcus. "It's fortunate because I would be dead without Daddy's money since I'm totally unable to work.

"On the other hand, maybe if I'd had to work I wouldn't have let myself get so overweight."

Simcus' doctors are concerned about his health. In addition to major heart and circulatory problems, the elephantine overeater also suffers from severe bacterial infections that have developed under the massive folds of his skin.

Daily, Simcus devours 12 to 15 smoked hams, five gallons of milk, four or five chickens, a 3-gallon pot of potatoes with bacon fat gravy, 14 apple pies and lots of chocolate.

"I've learned you never really kick this thing," says Simcus in a wheezing voice, constantly struggling for breath. "I thought I'd never be fat again. But this compulsion to overeat never leaves you. You have to fight it every day of your life."

"A heavy smoker for 20 years, I made an amazing discovery that eliminated my desire to smoke in just 9 days, almost without my noticing, and without any medicine or weight gain."

Exclusive: Important disclosure of Monsieur Jacandré, Head Chef in Grasse (Alpes-Maritimes) France

"What happened to me was so incredible that at first I was hesitant to reveal my secret to those who, like me, want to stop smoking, but don't want to feel as if they are giving up one of life's pleasures.

"So first I waited to make sure that my desire to smoke would not come back as quickly as it had disappeared.

"Now that I haven't smoked for over a year, I feel ready to tell people how I did it, and how, to my own astonishment, it was the simplest thing in the world!

"If you'd seen me just two years ago, you wouldn't have thought I was in very good shape. I was at the end of my rope, as the saying goes—nervous, anxious, and unable to sleep whenever I was bothered by the slightest problem. I was also smoking two packs of cigarettes a day, not to mention the little cigars I kept handy in my car at all times! The only time I smoked less was when I was working in the kitchen."

One day I had to make a choice: tobacco or...

"I would get up feeling tired, and every morning at the market I would have this terrible cough. Worse than that, I noticed that with each passing day my ability to smell and taste food was deteriorating, which for me was very serious indeed. Because as a chef, losing my sense of taste meant losing my livelihood.

"I was afraid! I said to myself. It's either tobacco or my career. I decided to stop, and that's when it all began.

"I spoke to a lot of people, and everyone had some kind of technique, or a pill or a new brand of chewing gum. I even went for acupuncture treatments, without much success—I'd stop for a week or two, after which I'd resume smoking as many cigarettes as before.

"You may be aware that Grasse is the

"I read the article and found it so interesting I wrote to Professor Pawelsberg that same day. He answered immediately, and I appreciated his prompt reply since I didn't want to wait—I believed in the method, and I was in a hurry to get started!"

explained that he'd decided to quit smoking because he was losing his sense of smell—just like me!

"And he talked about a certain professor Pawelsberg, who worked in the area, and who had given him this amazing treatment, thanks to which he'd stopped smoking in twelve days. He gave me a newspaper clipping about the discovery."

A procedure which amazes even doctors!

"Professor Pawelsberg first tested his discovery on himself, and then spread the word in France. In a few months 1,200 doctors had undergone the procedure, and the success rate was astonishing. Even more astonishing was the fact that the method was totally unknown to the general public.

"I received Professor Pawelsberg's method, and I immediately felt it would work for me too. It was so simple, and completely natural. What surprised me the most was that I could continue to smoke as long as I felt like it. I would stop smoking without even noticing!"

I stopped smoking in exactly 9 days.

"The first few days I smoked almost as much as before, especially in the car as I drove around to do my shopping. I was a little disappointed.

"And then after 5 or 6 days I noticed that my ashtray was empty, and my kitchen hardly smoked at all, and in the kitchen I didn't touch a single cigarette.

"After 9 days, the battle was won! And what was most surprising was that I found the smell of tobacco extremely unpleasant, so much so that I couldn't wait for the last client to leave the restaurant so I could open the windows wide and let in some fresh air. For me smoking was finished, completely finished!"

It all happened very quickly and it changed my life.

"It's true! I didn't have my horrible morning cough any more, and my sense of taste and smell—so closely related—were completely restored. I could once again savor the delicate flavors of sauces and subtle spices, along with the bouquet of fine wine.

"I could once again take pleasure in the profession I love, and get back to creating new dishes for my clients.

"Now everything is fine and life is beautiful. This summer I bought a small sailboat. I enjoy sports, which I had given up for lack of enthusiasm, and lack of breath!"

I never picked up another cigarette. For me smoking is finished, completely finished!

"It's been over a year since I quit smoking. And I have absolutely no temptation to start again!

"I agreed to tell my story in the hope that my own experience will help other people who are trying to quit, and who think they've tried everything. Now they can succeed with ease, without any feelings of frustration.

"But I'd like to get into a little more detail for the sake of all those who are still hesitant. Throughout the entire period of this 'treatment' you feel absolutely no nervousness or anxiety. Nor do you feel the need in any more than usual, so you don't gain any weight. On the contrary, I actually lost 9 or 10 pounds since I stopped smoking!"

Never try to stop smoking on your own. It's very dangerous. Here's why!

Ask any doctor, and he or she will agree that it is useless, and sometimes very dangerous to quit smoking on your own, through will power alone.

Why? Because all you'll be thinking about is "stopping smoking," so that every time you feel like having a cigarette you'll be forced to make a greater and greater effort of will to resist. You'll feel nervous and nervous, and you'll probably start gaining weight as you try to use food to compensate for the "lack" you feel in your body.

It's also highly probable that, because of your own nervousness, you'll make the lives of everyone around you miserable as well.

All this can be scientifically explained: your body got used to tobacco over a period of years, and needs its dose of toxins (nicotine and tar) to feel comfortable.

If you stop all at once, your body's balance is disturbed, and you'll end up "craving" under the pressure sooner or later. That's why the treatment Professor Pasveberg will give you, allows you to keep on smoking as much as you like. You have to get rid of your desire progressively, in the same way that you acquired it... until it disappears by itself, with no effort on your part, in 9 to 14 days, depending on the individual.

How exactly does it work?

At first you'll be smoking almost as much... but don't worry, that's perfectly normal! The first couple of days you'll hardly notice any difference. Then on the third and fourth days, without even realizing it, you should already start feeling less of a need to reach for a cigarette. And if you do light up, you'll find that you'll leave the cigarette half unsmoked in the ashtray!

After that things should happen very quickly. You will begin to notice that you've only smoked a few cigarettes, and that you've hardly thought about it. Then after 9 to 14 days (results from this type of procedure vary according to the individual), smoking will have lost all its importance for you. You'll feel neither the need nor the desire to light up. And that's it, you've quit!

As proof, why not accept this really unique (and free) offer? Here it is:

As part of a new American campaign to help people who want to stop smoking, Professor Pasveberg, in association with Body Well, Inc., has decided to give away a booklet entitled "Why and How To Stop Smoking" that tells about the Pasveberg "treatment" and

Can everyone feel their need to smoke disappear as quickly and easily?

To date there are already 1,248 men and women who finally stopped smoking, although they no longer believed they could. Their success is documented in written testimonials. Here are a few quotations from letters that we receive regularly:

(We regret not being able to reproduce these letters in their entirety, for lack of space. Copies of the original will be sent to you upon request.)

"... I'd been smoking for about 35 years, sometimes up to two packs a day. Thanks to your treatment, I reduced the amount I smoked each day, until no smoke was left, even though I was skeptical at first. Last Saturday, eight or nine days later, I was surrounded by smokers, and felt absolutely no desire to smoke..."

Madame Diane A. Dunkirk

"... I tried a number of methods with no success. From the first day of the treatment, I went from twenty cigarettes a day to none, and stopped completely after nine days..."

Mr. Jean-Claude H. Wimille

"... I am 54 years old. My brother died of lung cancer, and that is what got me to act. Then one day someone told me about your treatment. It cost me a lot, I thought. So I said, what the heck, happened what may, why the treatment I would hardly believe at all! I was afraid I'd start again, but NO!..."

Mr. Maurice B.

"... I was the type of person who bought a pack of cigarettes every time I went out to a corner store. I always needed my own pack of cigarettes that is, until I found myself at the table. I wanted to go outside before smoking, so the latter because I wanted to be absolutely certain of being able to smoke outside, come back, and it didn't!..."

Mr. Philip R., Le Boulou

"I'm 41 years old and I've been [illegible] two packs a day since I was 18. I had already tried to quit a few times without success, and ended up telling myself I'd never be able to do it. Then I came across your method, and as I am now in [illegible] NON-SMOKER. It's simply efficient. I can still hardly believe that I stopped smoking so quickly and easily. I feel great. I'm sure no one else has been there ever..."

Mrs. Beatrice H., Saint-sur-Sarthe

"I had no idea how it better you could feel when you don't smoke any more. My coughing fits have disappeared, and my lungs are breathing..."

Mrs. Christiane S., St. Denis-l'Argentaie

"I quit smoking in 8 days, and more than I haven't missed it one bit. It's like I never smoked at all!"

Mr. [illegible] B.

"The result was astonishing. On the tenth day I didn't smoke a single cigarette. It all happened so quickly, so easily, and I'm so happy I finally got out of the smoking habit..."

Mrs. Claudine S., La Chapelle

"Since June 1980 I completely stopped smoking, thanks to the Pasveberg Method. I have never felt any need to light up again—and the ashtray gathers dust on a single pretext!"

Mr. Christian B., Les Sables

"I plan to smoke cigarettes. And I don't have that terrible desire to light up a cigarette that I had when I tried other methods."

Mr. Eugene V., Antwerp

Follow in the footsteps of all these people who quit smoking so quickly and easily. Just fill out the simple order form and drop it in the mail. Don't send any money. There's nothing to pay.

In a few days you'll receive your package, discreetly wrapped, with no exterior markings. Then you can make up your own mind whether or not the treatment can free you of your desire to smoke... without upsetting your mental or physical equilibrium.

Does it sound too good to be true? Do you think you've already tried everything? Then wonder if you might be right. Because if you're not, you'll be the only one who is.

If ever an important offer was made to you, this is it. And there are absolutely no risks involved, either financial or otherwise.

Read on only if you are still hesitant to take advantage of this unusual offer.

1. Are you aware of the dangers of smoking? As you surely know, smoking greatly increases the risk of cancer and cardiovascular disease. According to studies conducted by Professor Fleix of Oxford University, tobacco will have killed over 50 million people between 1950 and the year 2000. Is that a risk you're willing to take?

2. Don't you think it would be a pity to keep on damaging your heart and lungs, even though now your chances of getting rid of your desire to smoke are extremely high?

3. If you've already tried everything to quit smoking, you probably don't believe in anything any more. If so, and to prove to you that this method is different, return the attached order form. It only cut of simple curiosity. You run absolutely no risk of losing any money. The only thing you can lose is your desire to smoke!

Q I was amazed by the way the dragon in the medieval fantasy flick Dragonheart really resembled Sean Connery, who did the voice. How did the filmmakers pull that off?

— Nicki B., Kingsville, Texas

A The movie wizards videotaped Connery's facial expressions as he recorded audio for the film and incorporated them into the computer-generated dragon image.

They also relied on a carefully cataloged set of clips from about 30 of the Scottish actor's old movies. Whenever they made a sneer and needed one of the Scottish brute's familiar expressions, like his sexy smile or sardonic lift of the eyebrow, they referred to one of the old clips.

IF E.T. LANDS IN MY YARD, I'LL BLOW HIS HEAD OFF!

SPACE ALIENS WOULD MAKE SLAVES OF HUMANS, WARN EXPERTS!

I'm madder than Captain Kirk with a virulent parasite over all the idiotic hullabaloo I've been hearing about space aliens this summer.

Everybody seems to think the odds of Earth being invaded by a bunch of crazed men from Planet X is one great big joke. Well, I'm here to tell you that we'd better start preparing right now if we're going to have a snowball's chance in Hell of kicking E.T.'s butt anytime in the future.

I've seen it. A spaceship full of lightsaber heads with green tinted X-Ray sight visors through the universe to say "Nice [illegible] now you are Sam."

What they are going to trade them for is to turn the whole human race into [illegible] scraping [illegible] of 1970 beef for eating our soul.

That's the latest theory published in the prestigious World Psychic History Institute of Zurich, Switzerland.

As most sapphire message on uphabited planets throughout our galaxy, these alien [illegible] home will be forced to [illegible] a deep space.

The problem is the experts say those brains are almost certain to be meat eating beasts. And that's where we come in, as prime.

Cubed flesh in these space invaders will be every bit as yummy as T-bone steaks are to us.

They'll look at us the way Dr. Taylor looks at platter of pork chops in gum.

The bone will latters us up like pigs ... then butcher us when we reach the age of 21 or 30.

Forget about the budget deficit. Our grandchildren won't have to worry about stuff like that — because they'll be [illegible] into prime beefs.

So it's a bit relax our shaded my friends. If the Good Lord wanted us to be buddy buddy with space aliens, He'd have

If somebody says '. . . to be perfectly honest,' THEY'RE LYING!

By ELAINE ROBERTS / Weekly World News

If you want to come across as perfectly honest, never say "to be perfectly honest," warns a language expert — who reveals other phrases people commonly use and shouldn't.

Listeners become wary of what you're about to say when you use the phrase "to be perfectly honest," says language scholar Professor William Lutz.

"If a politician says it, I think most people in the audience are thinking, 'He's about to tell me a lie.' "

Here are other conversational no-nos, according to Prof. Lutz:

● NEEDLESS TO SAY — "If it's needless to say, then don't say it," he advises.

● AS YOU'RE WELL AWARE -- If listeners are already aware, then why say it?

And if they aren't, the phrase will just make them feel stupid, says Prof. Lutz, author of the book Doublespeak From Revenue Enhancement To Terminal Living.

● YOU KNOW WHAT I MEAN? -- If your listener doesn't know what you mean, he'll ask.

● I HEAR WHAT YOU ARE SAYING -- "You appear to be agreeing without really agreeing," the professor said. "Later you may find that someone thinks you've said yes when you may not have really said yes."

Also to be avoided are statements with words ending -m "ish," such as "I'll meet you around 10ish." It's better to give a specific time.

"These phrases can lead to imprecise communication in important situations," Prof. Lutz said.

Florida woman's close encounter of the worst kind . . .

'I was sexually pawed by a love-crazed Bigfoot!'

VICTIM Kimberly Caldia looked her year and brawny hunk in the pix after her frightening encounter with a hairy Bigfoot.

By JOE BERGER

ORLANDO, Fla. — Unsuspecting secretary Kimberly Caldia was camping alone in a remote Florida forest when she was chased, kissed and stripped nearly naked — by a smelly, 350-pound Bigfoot!

"Suddenly, this thing just lunged into my camp. At first I thought it was a caveman, since I figured no one else would come right toward me," recalled sexy Kimberly, 24.

"I knew exactly what he wanted. The first time he ran off but came back to try and get after dinner. I ran a few hours to Friday night.

He grabbed me and started kissing me and tearing at my clothes, and there was no doubt in my mind that he meant business. All I could think was, you'd better find a way to handle this big guy or — and fast!"

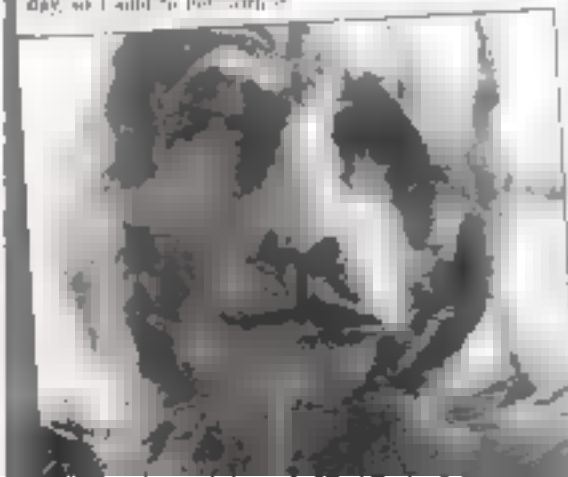
The Orlando shopper's hair-raising tale began June 23 shortly after she pitched camp in Florida's rugged Ocala National Forest.

"I don't usually camp alone, but the friends I was going with got delayed and I was probably going to go another day, so I said 'to hell with it' and went on ahead," said Kimberly. "I figured I was perfectly safe.

But the shadow that got the best of me early that night was no bear. It was a 7-foot-tall, 350-pound Bigfoot covered with dark hair from head to toe. I shrieked and ran deeper into the woods.

He came right for me and there was nothing I could do but run. The screaming didn't bother him a bit. He was — took me — I was — I could take three steps.

He grabbed me by the hands and then my body — and he had me — I was pretty — when old Bigfoot showed up — I didn't want to — for our second date.



"I knew exactly what he wanted!"

He pulled me by the hands to his — anywhere around there — and then my body — and he had me — I was pretty — when old Bigfoot showed up — I didn't want to — for our second date.

He grabbed me and tore my clothes off — and that's when I let out the biggest, most hideous, ear-splitting scream I could muster.

He got a really hard surprised look on his face, but he didn't let go. I screamed again as loud as I could — and he turned and looked at me for the first time, like he was trying to figure out a trick.

The 5-foot-6-inch camper quickly loaded her gear into her pickup truck and sped back to the ranger station in the city.

I didn't even wait around

Don't whine about being lonely! IT'S GOOD FOR YOU!

A little bit of loneliness can be good for you and make you a better person, say top medical experts.

There are times when you should actually cut yourself off from other people, advises Dr Frederic Flach.

Loneliness [illegible] when:

- It helps you [illegible] the people close to you. When you're alone and start missing someone, you realize you may have been taking that person for granted.
- It helps you solve problems and get a fresh perspective on your life. Cutting yourself off from others for a while helps you to think more clearly without being distracted.
- Being alone enriches your spiritual life — your appreciation of God.

"Loneliness can put you more in touch with the calm, serene, spiritual side of yourself," Dr Flach said. "When you read about the lives of the saints and people who've had religious experiences, you often find they have one thing in common — periods of loneliness."

If you associate with people who take advantage of you, spend some time by yourself, adds psychiatrist Emery Hyatt. [illegible] this exercise you don't need those [illegible] out supportive [illegible] he says.

When will there finally be a woman President?

Dear Serena: This presidential campaign is driving me crazy. I don't like any of the candidates — and I've even considered those weird ones that no one has ever heard of.

I've decided it's time we had a woman President. I know that everyone jokes about Hillary being the President now, but I'm totally serious. And I'm not some feminist — actually I'm a 56-year-old man. But I'm really looking forward to the day when a woman is elected President. Please tell me when this will finally happen. — Robert in Bayard

ROBERT in Bayard

Dear Robert: The year 2000 will be a big year for female candidates. Women will be nominated for President by one party and Vice President by the other. The vice presidential nominee will win — and she'll move up to President in the year 2001!

Dear Serena: Last week I saw a huge spider crawling across the kitchen floor. I'm totally scared by spiders and this one just about gave me a heart attack. I swear I think it was a tarantula or some kind of a poisonous spider like that. My dad says we don't have tarantulas in Vermont but I know what I saw. I've been staying at friends' houses ever since I saw it and I've told my parents I'm not sleeping in our house until they kill that spider or prove to me it's gone. They said I should write in to you to find out what the deal is with this creepy crawly thing. Is it still in my house? — Sarah in Hardwick

SARAH in Hardwick

Dear Sarah: The spider's been spending most of the past three days in your room, hiding under the pillow on your bed. But there's nothing to worry about. It isn't a tarantula. In fact it's not poisonous at all and won't even bite you. Have your father open the window in your room this afternoon and I promise that spider will step out and never come back.

Dear Serena: Does my husband go to strip joints? He says he's just going to a pool hall but I think he's stopping off to check out nude dancers. Tell me if he's been lying. If he has, I think I'll start stepping out on him once in a while. — Elizabeth in Owensboro

ELIZABETH in Owensboro

Dear Elizabeth: We don't really going to strip joints but he is going to nightclubs that have contests in which the women frequently take their clothes off and dance around half-naked. Most people don't like to brag about how they've caught their spouse cheating, but you've got to tell your husband you don't appreciate his late night activities. He'll feel terribly guilty — and will immediately start behaving himself!

Dear Serena: My dog is the reincarnation of my father. I'm certain of that. Needless to say I love him dearly but I'm in a bit of a quandary. I know I should have my dog neutered to help control the pet population. I've always done this in the past with all my pets but now that we're talking about my father, I'm kind of hesitant to do something so drastic. If I do the right thing and have my dog neutered, will my dear father always hold it against me? — Undecided in Ann Arbor

Dear Undecided: You are correct in believing that this dog is the reincarnation of your dad. But please don't think he will be upset if you have him neutered. Because he is forced to stay on the couch, neutering will actually make his life easier and less stressful.

Mama was a saint — but I killed her anyway!

Dear Dotti: My mother was a wonderful woman and I respect her in many ways, or at least I did respect her until I took my shotgun to her trailer a few months ago and blew her away. You see, she always taught me to stand up for what I believe in and told me that, no matter what, I should always follow my heart. Well, I have tried to do that all my life. And to tell you the truth, that's why she's dead. She tirked me off because she refused to loan me $4,000 to buy a car. Basically, I followed my heart — and blew her head off. Now I'm in jail and it won't be long before I go to prison. But at least I did what my mama always told me to do. I'm writing to warn parents to be careful what they teach their kids. Those little lessons in life could come back to haunt them — big time!
— J.D. in Chicago

J.D. in Chicago

Dear J.D.: I agree parents have to be careful, especially when they're rearing psychopaths like you. If your mother had it to do over, I'm sure she'd wise up ... and instruct you on the finer points of suicide!

PAUL in Rocky Mount

Dear Dotti: Ever since I got married last December my wife Becky has been giving me fits. For one thing she doesn't believe I need more than two nights a week to go drinking and playing cards with the boys. To top the rules, she doesn't want me to spend any time at all with other women, including my ex-girlfriends Karen and Marcia, who — as I've made clear to my wife many times — still give me a little lovin' on the side. Rebecca just doesn't have much of a sex drive, and she is well aware of the fact that I need a lot more intimacy than she is

Virgin Mary says: Repent — the End Times are here

Dear Dotti: For several months now I've been having regular visions of the Virgin Mary. She has warned me that we are in the End Times and says we must repent before it's too late. HILLA CLINTO SECRET SEA TA

By GEORGE SANDOVAL
Weekly World News

Millions of Americans were stunned last month when famed Washington Post journalist Bob Woodward revealed that First Lady Hillary Clinton held a seance-like session at the White House — in which she had a conversation with the late Eleanor Roosevelt.

The secret "guided meditation" session, in which Mrs. Clinton was asked to imagine a one-on-one encounter with the deceased wife of FDR, took place in April 1995, and was conducted under the supervision of New Age guru Jean Houston, according to Woodward's new book, The Choice.

Houston asked Mrs. Clinton to shut her eyes and to visualize the frumpy, outspoken New Deal-era blue-blood. Woodward provided only a sketchy account of the extraordinary meeting, which was tape recorded. But a source close to the White House claims to have seen firsthand a transcript of the tape and provided Weekly World News with a word-for-word account.

Here, exclusively for NEWS readers, is the riveting conversation Mrs. Clinton had with the legendary late Mrs. Roosevelt.

MRS. ROOSEVELT: Yes, my dear. I'm positively thrilled that you've taken a moment to chat. I'm so sorry to have lost you and your husband [illegible] getting on. Would you care for some tea?

MRS. CLINTON: No thank you, ma'am. That is so exciting. You know, you're always been my greatest ear here. The way you stood by my guy what way on your usual and fight for society's underdogs.

MRS. ROOSEVELT: Oh, I'm afraid the history books have given me far more credit than I still due, Hillary — and I'm sure Hillary.

MRS. CLINTON: Of course.

MRS. ROOSEVELT: You see, it was my first opinion that I shouldn't dare tell my husband what to do before he had a staff of regular advisors at his service. Better to think of yourself as a sounding board against which he can test his ideas

MRS. CLINTON: Mmmm. I see . . .

the »GOLDEN« Pendulum!

More and more people are using it in Europe. With fantastic results. This method is brand new in America. That is why you should be one of the first who will WIN THE PRIZE OF HIS LIFE with this method (before there are thousands of FIRST PRIZE WINNERS). On request, I will send you such a pendulum

And the money can start pouring in to you!

First you must decide where you want to win a lot of money: in LOTTO, in the LOTTERY (where legally permissible), at the RACETRACK, etc. After that, I will show you how to use the pendulum. You take the "object" into your hand and let it swing (it is easy – very easy. Everyone can do it.) Then you ask the pendulum which number it should name. Will it be the number 1, 2, 3 ... 17, 30, 35, ? And your »GOLDEN« Pendulum will always answer immediately: YES or NO! (That takes a few minutes, but what's 10 minutes for perhaps millions of dollars?)

Then you play the numbers that you have found in LOTTO, in the LOTTERY, at the RACE TRACK, (where legally permissible)

IT IS THAT SIMPLE TO BE LUCKY. YOU ONLY HAVE TO KNOW HOW!

If you want to become my FRIEND today, then I want to help you!

WHO IS HANUSSEN?

His predecessor was brutally killed by the Nazis in Germany in 1933 – because he had prophesied the end of Hitler's Reich. HANUSSEN himself was raised in orphanages under the process of (un)natural-ex. But this great clairvoyant developed his supernatural powers even more. He predicted GORBACHEV, the EARTHQUAKE in San Francisco, the BERLIN WALL. HANUSSEN has so many FRIENDS in Europe

MAN KNOCKS HIMSELF OUT WITH BOOMERANG

— then sues himself for $300,000 AND WINS!

By CHARLES GEORGE / Weekly World News

A Kentucky man who threw a boomerang that flew back and clobbered him in the head promptly filed a $300,000 lawsuit against himself — and incredibly, he was awarded the money!

But most amazing of all is the fact the guy will be get the money from his insurance company — and he personally won't have to pay a cent.

A court gave Larry Rutman of Owensboro the cash after it determined he "caused body damage through negligence and careless disregard."

"The accident occurred on my property so my homeowners insurance was liable for it," Rutman said of the April 18 incident.

"Some of my neighbors say this is crazy but it's perfectly logical when you think about it. I paid that insurance for a long time just in case something unfortunate like this ever happened," he said. "And now all those years of paying premiums have turned out to be worthwhile."

Rutman testified that he was throwing the boomerang during sunset when the mishap occurred. He was trying to catch the boomerang when he lost it in the sun and it crashed into the forehead.

INJURED Larry Rutman won a lawsuit against himself

A lawyer advised Rutman he would not win a suit against the boomerang manufacturer - so he went after himself. Believe it or not, Rutman's case is far from being unique. Insurance industry figures show 7,601 people sued themselves in 1990. The average award in these cases was slightly more than $50,000.

"Some companies have policies to the place where they just settle these cases out of court," an industry insider revealed.

"When the suit shows some ignorance but is an accident in jury it's difficult for the insurance company to fight. But that doesn't mean people should start pestering themselves in hopes of getting some money," he said.

"Anyone who does it intentionally can end up facing charges of insurance fraud."

Rutman scoffs at the idea that he intentionally conked himself on the head with the boomerang.

"There's no way I'd go through the agony I've endured from what is quite a active and can't concentrate on anything for more than a few minutes," the 30-year-old said.

"I had to quit a job I'd held for seven years."

The injury also made Rutman so hyper sexual that it just about cost him his marriage.

"I don't know why but for weeks after the accident, I was eager for sex all the time," he said. "And when I wasn't bugging my wife for sex I was sitting around getting drunk. My wife threatened to leave me. She said I was like a teenager."

Rutman is now getting his life back in order.

"Things seem to be coming around for me and the

A BOOMERANG such as this one seriously injured Larry when he didn't see it coming and it smacked him in the forehead.

Survey reveals: Most folks make love at 10:54 p.m.

Americans are most likely to have sex at 10:54 p.m. than at any other time of the day or night, a new survey shows.

Researchers studied the sex habits of more than 3,000 couples in all 50 states before reaching their astounding conclusion.

The sociologists found that 93 percent of all sexual intercourse in this country occurs between the hours of 8 p.m. and 2 a.m. — with the peak time being 10:54 p.m.

Researchers also found that sex at 10:54 p.m. is more than twice as likely to be enjoyable than sex at any other time of the day or night.

MAN SWALLOWS WIFE'S PET SNAKE — AFTER FIGHT OVER BARBECUED CHICKEN!

By MIKE FOSTER

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Jose Ulash had all his wife's barbecued chicken so hurt he told her he'd rather eat snake — and to prove his point, he swallowed her 31-inch pet garter snake whole!

But the laugh was on Jose — the imbulance threat still died of two suffered excruciating abdominal pains and had to have the dead reptile surgically removed from his belly.

"I swear the story's right," Estelle Hurt's ex-wife Tamara, 24, told us. "I can't believe he did something so crazy and stupid."

The incident occurred on July [illegible] when Tamara, Ulash and his sprinting [illegible] were having dinner.

"Tamara never learned to cook worth a damn," says Jose. "The night she presented some gutpoint grass from a chick to recipe she got on TV, I took a simple stance that's all I could stomach.

"I believe in telling it like it is, so I told Tammy, 'I'd rather eat snake than this stuff!' I went to the garbage [illegible]

Ticked off, Tammy turned bright red and stomped off. Then we married back [illegible] her own pet old snake, Eddie.

I said to him, 'You want to eat snake, well why don't you open [illegible]' — says Tamara, who also owns three dogs.

To her horror, Jose grabbed the snake and stuffed it in his mouth. "I just sniffed to teach her a lesson," he insists. But within seconds he began to choke, and his stunned spouse called 911. Lt. Cpt. EMS workers arrived the [illegible] chick snake had disappeared down Jose's throat.

Jose looked normal for a minute then he doubled over in pain," says Tamara.

EMS workers rushed him to a hospital where doctors ordered an X-ray. "The X-ray revealed an intact snake in the patient's stomach," said a hospital spokesman. "We conducted a gastroscope to remove the obstruction."

Sadly, the snake was killed by acids in the man's stomach.

Fans push to make Yo-Yo competition Olympic event!

SPORT ENTHUSIAST demonstrates a no-nonsense hammer on Rock the Cradle.

By GEORGE SANFORD / Weekly World News

ATLANTA, Ga. — Next time the Olympic games roll around, the most popular event won't be the discus throw or pole vault — it will be the yo-yo!

That's the fervent hope of thousands of fans of the sport, who are petitioning officials to make yo-yo an Olympic event.

"These fine athletes spend years perfecting their sport, then only get to perform in school yards and at YMCAs," declares Jon Schuldhaus, spokesman for a group organizing the effort.

"It's demeaning. Why is synchronized swimming more important than With the Dog or 'Around the World'?"

Schuldhaus, five-time winner of Germany's National Yo-Yo Championship, has been working to legitimize the sport since 1981. He is also chairman of the Hamburg-based World Association of Yo-Yo Artists, which is spearheading the Olympic drive.

In the past year, Yo-yo packs, entrancing "string heads" and supporters from around the world have bombarded Olympic Committee members with more than 10,000 letters asking for yo-yos to be the next games' pet sport in Australia in the year 2000.

"There's a lot of misperceptions," admits Schuldhaus, 38, who now coaches other enthusiasts. "Many people still think of yo-yo as a simple childhood game like jacks — but that just isn't true. To master even one yo-yo maneuvers requires split-second timing, intense concentration and a heart-pounding workout.

"To develop those skills takes discipline and training."

At this year's games, three members of his association got on a dazzling display of Chest yo-yo prowess before an informally assembled group of Olympic Committee members and judges.

"The officials told me our athletes really wowed them," says Schuldhaus. "We're hoping this helped win them over."

But not U.S. sportswriter Jack Hanrahan, who covered the event. "Yo-yo is a fun sport, but it's not an Olympic sport," he says. "Maybe in the year 2100."

Expert's easy tips to beat the JITTERS!

You can defeat anxiety by acting as if you don't have it at all, says an expert.

"Anxiety is caused by thinking too much about all the 'what ifs'," says psychologist Dr Gary Emery.

But if you're gripped by anxiety and you just can't seem to keep on what you were doing — as if you weren't suffering an anxiety attack — your attention shifts from "what if" to "what is," and your anxiety melts away, Dr Emery explained.

"This will work even if you don't perform the job right — just perform in spite of the anxiety.

"If you are reading, continue reading.

"If you are working, work. Slow down if you have to, but keep going and I promise you your perseverance will pay off.

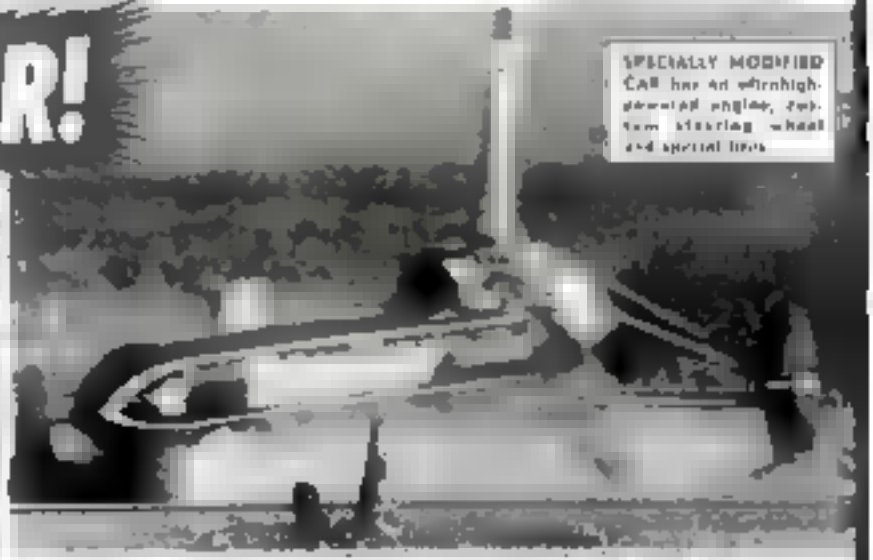
World exclusive interview with first man to hit 3,000 m.p.h.

FUEL INVENTOR and man we drove but Bardeman

. . . IN A CAR!



SPECIALLY MODIFIED CAR has an ultra-high-powered engine, rear-type steering wheel and special tires

By CHARLES GEORGE

An Alabama man has shattered the land speed world record by travelling at a mind-boggling 3,000 miles per hour — in a car!

Dick Bardeman accomplished the amazing feat in the Sahara Desert in Africa on July 6. He used a secret new fuel that he says will revolutionize the automobile and industry forever.

"This accomplishment is the most important scientific breakthrough since the invention of the car!"

Bardeman said in an exclusive interview after setting the record. "Mainstream petroleum companies will need only minor alterations on their car engines to use my new fuel — and then they'll be able to get hundreds of miles to the gallon.

Bardeman admitted he'd like to make the car in your garage or corner gas station.

"The car I used had an aluminum high-powered engine and other special features that allowed it to hit the 3,000 mph mark," he said. "It also installed special tires and a steering wheel that helped me keep the car in line. My car was built to attain tremendous speeds — and to run on the ordinary gasoline found at service stations.

But the previous American land speed record of 631 miles per hour — set by Craig Breedlove in 1965 — was clocked on a measured course.

The Daily Star racing car raced to Victoria to get the measurement record. He covered the mile in one minute and seven seconds, beating by 14 seconds over the magical 3,000 mph mark.

Bardeman's effort easily shattered the previous land speed record of 631 miles per hour — set by Craig Breedlove in 1965. Many experts

But no one can deny Bardeman's record. He reached 3,000 mph in slightly more than two minutes and then took off from there.

"The hardest part is the first 15 seconds before the car reaches over 100 m.p.h.," he said. "At low speeds it has a tendency to make quite a bit of a pull to the right. I really had to fight the wheel [illegible]

[illegible] which is called Bardeman's Folly. But he says he is negotiating with leading gas companies about marketing it in the United States.

"The automobile industry will change forever when I start selling my fuel to the public," he said. "I admit I thought about keeping the stuff to myself and starting a racing team — but my family and I decided it would be [illegible]

Safe and simple ways to overcome impotence

By SETH CLAYTON · Special Correspondent

BOSTON — You can overcome impotence with simple, safe and amazingly effective techniques that have already helped thousands of men recapture the fire and passion that were missing from their lives!

That's the word from nationally recognized professor of urology Dr Irwin Goldstein, who daily states "There is no reason why almost any man can't enjoy an active sex life as long as he wants."

Dr. Goldstein recently appeared before the cameras to report on the dramatic results of new treatments for impotence. Appearing with him on tape were some of the thousands of patients he has successfully treated.

New procedure can result in a cure — within minutes!

Before consulting Dr Goldstein, most of these men — single and married, young and old, from painter to lawyer and student to senator — had been told that the problem was "all in their heads." But thanks to the latest clinical research and new medical techniques each man has been restored to sexual health and potency.

"We used to think that impotence was mainly psychological in nature," said Dr Goldstein, "but our experience with tens of thousands of men over the last 12 years shows that whenever there has been a consistent loss of a man's ability to have a erection, so many as nine out of 10 cases have a primary physiological cause."

According to current studies, all to 30 million American men suffer from impotence, most of them for years and rarely seek the physician counsel such as aging, injuries or the aging process.

According to Dr Goldstein, simple medical procedures can restore potency, resulting in a rigid erection within minutes.

And any man can give himself the treatment, in the privacy of his own home and the same process that usually has a 95 percent success rate or even 98.

Dr Goldstein is a professor of urology at Boston University Medical School, founder of the important new male Reproductive Biology Research Foundation, Brookline, Mass., and author of the landmark book The Potent Male (Regnercia Cycle Publishing, Inc. 1992).

In the video Dr Goldstein takes us in-depth look at the causes of impotence — and the very latest medical treatments. He frankly discusses the spectrum of treatments available from vacuum devices to injection therapy, in a language that everyone can understand.

Man hit in groin with softball really does sing soprano — like an opera star!

By KEVIN CRIED, Weekly World News

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Macho man Earl Blasinder had a booming bass voice until a softball struck him in the groin and turned him, literally, into a soprano — who sings like a nightingale!

BLASTED Wife Linda Blasinder.

And since the accident, the former beer-guzzling rowdy has changed in other ways, too. He used to spend his Sunday afternoons watching ballgames with his buddies at the corner bar. But now he lends his high, trilling voice to his church choir every week.

"Earl was going a bad way," says wife Linda, 31. "All he cared about was sports, beer and girly mags.

"But since the day that softball slammed into his testicles, he's been a totally different person."

And no one is more amazed than Earl himself!

"I could never sing a note in my life," says Earl, 33. "And I sure didn't see any reason in wasting my time in some church.

"Then that afternoon I was pitching a pick-up game with some guys from work. I rushed the plate thinking the batter was going to bunt. Instead he slammed a line drive that caught me right where it hurts.

"The pain was so bad I passed out.

"When I woke up and tried to talk, I sounded like Barbra Streisand.

"They had to carry me inside.

"I sat in the bathtub hoping the warm water would ease the pain. Something possessed me and I started singing."

Linda says she couldn't believe what she heard. "I heard that clear, sweet soprano voice flowing down from upstairs," she says. "I thought it was an angel."

Though not quite Metropolitan Opera quality, one critic describes Earl's singing as "fine, passionate and winning."

Earl agrees but says he deserves no credit.

"That softball knocked some badly needed sense into me," says the burly ex-biker. "I realize that — straight as it sounds — the whole thing was a sort of gift. I have been given a beautiful voice and I believe God wants me to share it with others and to use it to sing hymns of praise to Him.

"And that's what I intend to do for as long as He lets me."

TOUGH GUY Earl Blasinder is singing a different tune after being hit in the groin with a softball.

He couldn't carry a tune before the horrifying blow — now he chirps like a canary!

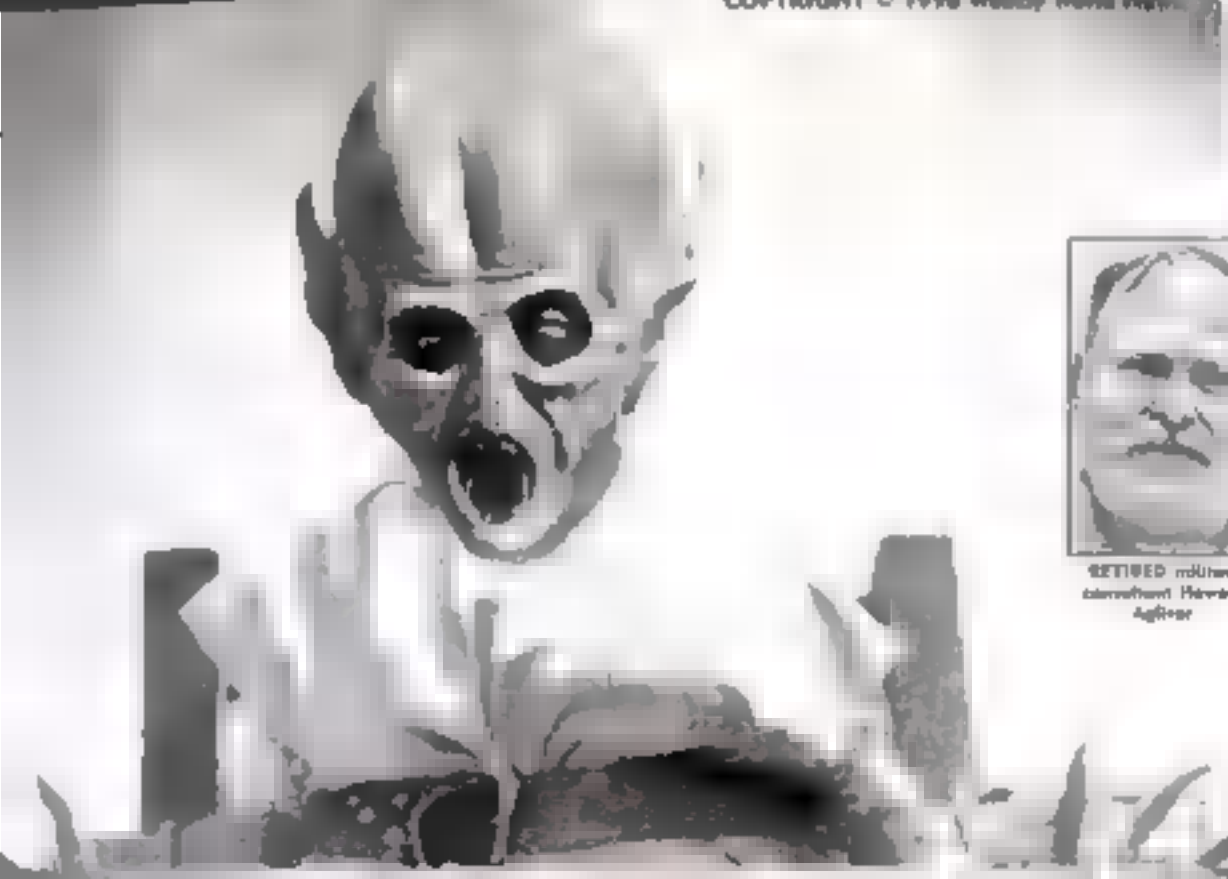
SPACE ALIEN EXECUTED!

By KEVIN CHILD
Weekly World News

COPYRIGHT © 1996 Weekly World News



WASHINGTON — A space alien has been put to death in the electric chair and another executed on death row at a federal prison waiting to die after being convicted of espionage!

That's the shocking claim of Washington insider Retired Agliver, who says the UFOs were captured by the U.S. military when their spacecraft crash landed in the New Mexico desert.

"They were tried as spies and sentenced to death," says Agliver, a retired military intelligence officer who served in our nation's capital for more than three decades. "The information was leaked to me by friends in the Pentagon who, for obvious reasons, must remain nameless for now."

Agliver's sources tell him that the aliens were yanked from the wreckage of the UFO shortly after it was tracked by U.S. Air Force radar. They were flown to a secret chamber in Washington where they were given a quick courtesy of a trial, found guilty and sentenced to death.

Then they were herded off to a federal prison.

A month later, he says, one of them was executed.

"He's [another] one and it's unclear," says Agliver, of "Without even finding out what the FBI's inventions were. Those puny no bureaucrats rushed to judgment and removed capital punishment on them. For all they knew, the Crustacean might have been sent here from their home planet as ambassadors of peace.

"But we'll never know because the poor things didn't speak our language.

"They didn't even understand the charges against them.

"Now one of them is dead and the other is languishing away here in fact the same way as the third."

The prosecution allegedly conceded that because the aliens landed an American shores in a flying craft, they're space. The panel of medical judges laughed at her, shook their heads.

Aglow planned experiments on other parts of the poor dead alien but prior to the operation the pathologists found a dead creature stapled into the chest cavity looking right mucked and matted.

Aglow did not say which the operation had place or which person is continuing the computing alien.

"But I can tell you this: This thing goes all the way up to the Defense Department's top levels," he said.

The carving forward with it because it proves to be true. Those creatures were followed. One is dead and the other is stated to die soon.

"And no one is willing to go to bat for him."

Use chess strategies to capture ANY man's heart!

By RANDY MEFFERT

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — Psychologist and chess master Dr. Kirin Arnason says single women can use the principles of the royal game to capture a mate!

And hundreds of women have followed her advice and wound up in loving relationships.

In her best-selling book Chess and universal. The object of the game is to overcome the king's — the mate's — resistance and capture him. And that's also the objective of every normal woman."

Here are some chess concepts she says can be adapted to romance:

● MAKE THE FIRST MOVE — "It's well known that the player with the white pieces has a big advantage because white moves first. The initiative is a major factor since it puts black on the defensive. Don't wait for your man to ask you out. Guys don't understand subtlety and they don't always know they're attracted to you. Sometimes you've got to make right at them. Ask them on a date."

● USE UNPREDICTABILITY — "One thing the world's chess masters have in common is that they rarely follow any set pattern of moves. They're unpredictable. Don't always do what your man expects you to do. Be a little mysterious. Don't always be available when he wants you. Keep him guessing."

● CONTROL THE CENTER — "Good chess players always arrange their pieces to strike at the center of the board. Be pursuit of your man, don't waste time on side issues. Some women get nervous or down and bicker on and on about nail polish, shopping and other pointless topics. Men like directness. Talk to him about things that really matter to you."

● ANTICIPATE THEIR MOVES — "Before you ask your man out a date, consider what resistance he might offer. If he says, 'I'd like to but I'm busy,' be ready with 'When are you free?' If he says, 'I'm not

FACE OF SATAN APPEARS ON THOUSANDS OF COMPUTER SCREENS!

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Evil has roared onto the information superhighway ... in the form of a terrifying new computer virus that makes the face of Satan appear on computer screens!

The horrifying image has shown up on thousands of monitors around the world — including computers at top universities, research labs and even the ultra-secure Pentagon.

And experts says that and more will be exposed to the virus as it spreads from one computer to the next.

"We don't know yet who's responsible for the virus — the suspects range from anti-technology guerrillas to Devil worshippers," said a government computer expert.

Officials believe the image — which first began to appear on Halloween, 1995 — is principally being transmitted through the Internet, the vast network that connects computers around the world through phone lines. "Anyone who logs on to the Internet faces the danger of picking up this virus," said the expert.

The virus — a set of hidden commands which attaches itself to a program — can also be transmitted from one computer to another when people exchange disks.

Victims report that the image of the horned figure appears dramatically then fades gradually to just a faint "ghost."

Although the virus does not seem to damage computer software, it does make work difficult. "It's pretty hard to concentrate when the face of 'The Evil One' is staring back at you," explained an engineer who recently became a victim of the virus.

Worst of all, the Satan Bug, as hackers have dubbed it, seems to be invulnerable to all commercially available programs for screening viruses. "We haven't been able to figure out how to stop this thing yet," admitted the expert. "Whoever created it was pretty darned smart."

If the Satan Bug affects your computer, officials advise you to notify your Internet access provider or software manufacturer.

FRIGHTENING image, above — created by the evil virus, experts say.

Radio station's stunt sings sizzling summer heat wave!

A radio station in California thwarted a deep-chilling heat wave — by having listeners turn their air conditioners on full-blast and open their windows!

When the thermometer hit a sizzling 101 degrees in Sacramento, Jerry Mitchell at KHYL-FM cooked up the crazy stunt and asked the listeners to join in at exactly 8:10 a.m.

Incredibly, a local weatherman confirmed that the stunt worked — and cooled area temperatures two full degrees in just 10 minutes.

Mitchell hopes to top the stunt next year by having listeners turn their heaters on full-blast in the middle of July!

COMPANIES HIRING & FIRING SO FAST — TOP EXECUTIVES HAVE TO WEAR NAME TAGS!

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

NEW YORK CITY — Executives come and go so quickly in this era of corporate downsizing that many large companies are requiring even high-level employees to wear name patches on their suits.

"It's a little embarrassing — it makes me feel a bit like a gas station attendant," admitted a 42-year-old assistant director of marketing at a major electronics firm.

"But it does help secretaries and other staffers recognize me when I come into a room."

WHO'S WHO? Top businessman cama and ga se last their secretaries can't remember their names.

The downsizing trend began during the recent recession, when cash-strapped companies were forced to resort to massive layoffs to stay afloat. But after the economy began to recover, businesses realized they could trim costs and boost profits by continuing the practice.

Now many corporations prefer to axe highly paid middle managers and replace them with skilled "temps" who do the same work for low day rates and few, if any, benefits.

These "revolving door" execs, hired to do everything from accounting to legal work, function well. But there's one glaring problem, revealed a vice president at one of the estimated 200 companies nationwide that have resorted to name tags.

"We noticed that secretaries, mail room clerks and others often had trouble remembering the names of some of our executives," said the V.P., who asked not to be identified.

"There would be embarrassing silences as they racked their brains for the person's name — or worse, attempted to guess wildly and got it wrong."

So the firm, which manufactures airplane parts, instituted name tags.

"We got the idea out of a business magazine. At first some of the executives grumbled about having patches sewn into their expensive Brooks Brothers suits," he said.

NEW LASER PROOF THAT BURIAL CLOTH OF CHRIST IS REAL!

JESUS'

HI-TECH laser camera captured the image of Jesus Christ's actual skeleton in the Shroud of Turin.

COPYRIGHT © 1996 WEEKLY WORLD NEWS

VATICAN CITY — The Shroud of Turin has turned out to be even more mysterious than scientists and scholars even dared to believe, with an exciting new photographic process revealing the skeleton of a man who suffered injuries consistent with those that would occur during a crucifixion.

"This is, in fact, dazzling new proof that the Shroud is the burial cloth of Jesus Christ," Dr. Marc Clement told reporters at a news conference here.

By REX WOLFE
Weekly World News

"As you can see from the photograph, the skeleton has suffered heavy trauma at the wrists and ankles, which is precisely where you would expect to find damage in a man who was nailed to a cross.

"Since the Shroud surfaced in the 14th century many observers have pointed to the superficial face on the cloth as proof of its being the burial cloth that was used to cover Christ after he died on the cross around 33 A.D.

"Because we have no way of knowing what Christ actually looked like, this analysis has always relied on a leap of faith. But the new photographic process provides additional, and to my mind, positive proof that this is the image of Christ himself.

"This is an exciting development in our study of the Shroud, which has been the focus of intense and often angry debate for hundreds of years.

"As far as I'm concerned, the debate is over. The Shroud of Turin is, in fact, the burial cloth of Jesus Christ. Not only can we see his face with the naked eye, we can now see his skeleton as well.

"What more proof do you need? To my way of thinking, none." The French researcher's remarks came at the conclusion of a wave of unprecedented security focusing on the Shroud, security that began when the Vatican allowed scientists from around the world to take snippets of the linen for analysis and study in the early 1980s.

The study of those snippets produced mixed results, with some experts claiming that sophisticated dating methods showed the Shroud to be only 600 years old — meaning it is a fake — and others claiming to have found that the Shroud was really nearly 2,000 years old, which would date it back to the time of Christ.

"It seemed like the more we studied the Shroud, the less we knew," said Dr. Clement. "That's when I decided to use what is known as the 'laser photographic process.'

"It is an incredibly sophisticated procedure based on technology which allows us to see extreme magnifications of small objects.

"Because of this magnifica-
